Where Does Artificial Intelligence Fit in the Classroom?

9/20/2019

3:00 – 6:00 pm

Teachers College, Columbia University

UNESCO, The World Innovation Summit for Education (WISE), and Teachers College, Columbia University

On the margins of the general debate of the 74th session of the United Nations General Assembly (UNGA), UNESCO, WISE, and Teachers College, Columbia University will hold an international conference on the future of AI in education around the theme, “Where Does Artificial Intelligence Fit in the Classroom?”

With the arrival of artificial intelligence in primary and secondary education classrooms, researchers are advising caution before welcoming AI without rigorous research. The conference will examine the current state of AI learning and the teaching of AI skills for students. It also will separate the myths from realities of AI and envision an inclusive future for AI in education.
